Mr. Larry Miller
Chairman
Franklin County Board of Commissioners
901 Public Square
Benton, IL 62812

Dear Mr. Miller:

As you requested, I have performed a forensic accounting analysis of the Franklin County, Illinois Treasurer's Office for the past two fiscal years ending November 30, 2022. My opinion is based on a forensic analysis of the financial reporting process that is overseen by the current elected Treasurer, and includes the internal control deficiencies I identified in the financial reporting of the Treasurer's Office as well as a listing of "red flags," which are indicators of potential problems that increase the likelihood of a material misstatement existing within the issued financial statements. My primary focus of my analysis was on the current organization of the department and specifically, the job performance of the Treasurer.

Findings

In my opinion, based on my analysis, I found numerous material weaknesses in internal controls and many red flags, both of which greatly increase the likelihood that material misstatements could occur, whether by error or fraud, and not be detected before the financial statements are issued to the public.

If financial statements containing material misstatements are issued, it could have serious consequences for the County. It could, for example, lower the credit rating of the county, making it difficult to get bond issues underwritten, and it would result in the bonds being issued at above-market rates. At best, this would cost the County more in interest payments, and at worst, it could have a severe impact on the financial future of the County if the County were unable to issue bonds.

It is also my opinion that the current Treasurer lacks the skills and abilities to successfully perform the job duties required in this position. I have summarized my findings in the paragraphs below, and have included the specific events and transactions I uncovered during my analysis as well as my overall opinion as to the effect of my findings on the financial outlook for Franklin County.

At this point in time, I am unable to definitively determine if fraud or misappropriation of assets has occurred. That determination would require the ability to directly access the County's financial systems. While we were able to obtain some independent information directly from the County's various banks, the financial information from the County was provided by the Treasurer. Whenever financial data is provided by the subject of an investigation, there is always the possibility it has been altered to cover up any defalcation and therefore, is unreliable.

Sincerely,

Client Name	Franklin County Illinois Board
Assignment Description	Forensic Analysis for the Past Two Years of Financial Reporting by the Treasurer's Office of Franklin County, Illinois Determine Any Weaknesses in Internal Controls in the Treasurer's Office Identify Red Flags for Errors or Fraud by the Treasurer Provide an Opinion and Recommendations for the Franklin County Board
Purpose of Engagement	Forensic Analysis of Treasurer's Office
Report Date	July 16, 2023

Background

I was retained by the Franklin County Board of Commissioners ("County Board" or "Board") to perform a forensic analysis of the financial reporting performed by the Treasurer's Office ("Office") and to determine if any deficiencies or weaknesses are present in the existing financial reporting process as well as identifying any indicators of potential fraud.

I was contacted for this engagement as a result of frequent delays in the current Treasurer providing financial information to the County Board and to the external auditor, the latter delay resulting in the issuance of the audit report for the fiscal year ending November 30, 2021 over twelve months after the year-end and more than six months after the due date. By Illinois state law, delays in the issuance of the annual audit report can result in significant fines and penalties as well as potentially affecting the County's ability to issue bonds. It also makes the County look bad in the eyes of its constituents.

This report summarizes numerous weaknesses in internal controls uncovered during my investigation into the Treasurer's Office, and these are in addition to what was noted by the external auditors. These controls are vitally important to decreasing the risk of material misstatements occurring in the financial statements and records.

This report also summarizes numerous “red flags” that generally increase the possibility of errors or fraud in the financial statements. Finally, this report will summarize my analysis of the ability of the Treasurer to adequately perform the duties of the Office and any potential consequences of inadequate performance.

Lack of Sufficient Personnel to Adequately Perform the Duties of Treasurer

Based on my analysis, it is my opinion that the Treasurer’s Office lacks sufficient personnel to perform the duties of the office. According to evidence obtained through examination and through interviews with a former employee in the Treasurer’s Office, the staffing levels are inadequate to perform all the duties of the department in a thorough and timely manner. I reviewed the financial records, bank reconciliations, the required work product, the current staffing, and the delays in the performance of key job duties to corroborate her assertions.

Franklin County has over forty bank accounts that require monthly bank reconciliations to be completed by the Treasurer’s Office. Bank reconciliations are necessary to arrive at the organization’s true cash balance at the end of an accounting period. The bank balance will not be a true cash balance because of outstanding checks and any uncredited deposits. Likewise, the book balance may be inaccurate due to bank fees, returned checks, and other items such as errors in the check amounts.

The preparation of these monthly bank reconciliations has been chronically delayed by the Treasurer’s Office. In some cases, the delays have been significant. This is problematic because the account holder generally has only 30 to 60 days (depends on the nature of the error) to review the account and bring any errors to the bank’s attention for correction. If fraudulent transactions are occurring, the County would be liable for any losses not identified within the 60-day window. It could also result in an overdraft if checks continue to be written without knowing the true cash balance. Furthermore, these delays inhibit the County Board’s ability to make decisions based on the available cash balance in County funds.

Each bank reconciliation can take up to three hours to complete, meaning the bank reconciliations alone can take up to 120 hours a month to complete. Assuming the average monthly working hours are 176 hours (22 days times 8 hours per day), there is not sufficient time for this procedure and the other financial reporting responsibilities of the department for two, let alone one employee.

Understaffing should be a solvable problem, but according to a former employee, the Treasurer does not like to delegate. This former employee was a key longtime employee who was experienced and knowledgeable with both the workings of the office and the financial accounting software, and who worked in the office prior to the election of the current Treasurer. According to this former employee, the Treasurer stopped delegating work to her after she brought several errors to his attention. He took over many of her job responsibilities and after several conflicts, she left to work in another County department.

After this employee left the Treasurer's Office, the financial reporting problems and delays increased. There were substantially more financial reporting issues after she left the department and when the Treasurer was doing the majority of the financial reporting with little, if any, assistance. This is evidenced by the substantial increase in the number of documented material weaknesses in the November 30, 2021 audit report compared to prior years.

During the interview with the Treasurer,¹ he admitted this employee's departure was a huge loss for the department and was a key factor in the office being so far behind in getting its work done. However, when I suggested that it might be helpful to hire additional staff, at least on a part-time basis, he said he thought they were getting caught up and hiring additional staff would not help.

It appears from the interviews that the Treasurer continues to resist delegating work to his staff. When someone insists on doing all the work himself and resists delegating or having his work reviewed, that is a huge red flag. Without any segregation of duties or oversight of any kind, the possibility that fraud will occur is greatly increased. During the interview, the Treasurer indicated he does not like to delegate these responsibilities because he does not have confidence in his current employees' abilities. Yet he did not mention any plans to either get these employees additional training or replace them with people he could trust.

The Franklin County Board Chairman, Larry Miller, said that the Treasurer has been resistant to providing the Board with requested financial information and if they get financial information, it is outdated. The Chairman also said that on a number of occasions, the Treasurer has seemed ill prepared to answer questions at the Board meetings.² This is concerning because defensiveness and resistance to oversight are possible indicators of either incompetence or fraud.

Red Flags and Weaknesses in Internal Controls in the Treasurer's Office

Strong internal controls are a vital component of reliable financial reporting. Internal controls over financial reporting consist of having policies and procedures in place to ensure that financial statements are prepared accurately and the potential for fraud is reduced. Weak or non-existent internal controls can allow material misstatements in the financial statements or enable fraud to occur, both of which can lead to substantial financial losses for the County. After reviewing the internal controls over financial reporting in the Franklin County Treasurer's Office, I identified several material weaknesses.

² Interview with Mr. Larry Miller, Chairman of the Franklin County Board, April 25, 2023.

Checks Are Signed Electronically

Some of the most important internal controls in an organization are controls over the issuance of checks. Without them, there is the very real possibility that the person in control of issuing checks can write checks to themselves, fictitious vendors, or another co-conspirator.

A common control over the issuance of checks is the requirement for two signatures on each check to verify that both signers agree the payment is proper and reasonable. If only one signature is required on an organization's checks, the possibility of errors or fraud is increased. In this case, the checks issued by the Treasurer's Office require two signatures; one signature is provided by the Treasurer and the other by the County Clerk.

According to a former employee, the checks are generated electronically and the signatures are generated through the computer program. Based on my review of the signatures, they appear to be identical on all checks. Because the signatures are not handwritten, the Treasurer could issue checks with both signatures without the consent or knowledge of the County Clerk. I found no evidence of a thorough review process that would ensure the County Clerk had actually seen the documentation supporting the checks he supposedly approved. See Schedule I, which shows a sample of checks with the electronic signatures that are identical. The account numbers and other sensitive information have been redacted.

There is no approval process to add vendors, that coupled with the use of the electronic signatures, greatly increases the possibility that checks could have been issued to fictitious vendors. In order to check for fictitious vendors, I would need direct access to run a master list of vendors from the financial system. If that list contains fictitious vendors, it would be easy for the subject of the investigation to remove them prior to providing the list to me. Due to the lack of direct access in this case, a warrant would be required and that option is only available in a litigation setting. In this case, there is no pending litigation as of the date of this report and thus, no way to verify whether or not fictitious vendors exist.

No Descriptions at the Bottom of the Checks

In addition to the electronic signatures, there are no descriptions at the bottom of the checks. Descriptions are necessary to identify the purpose of and reason for the expenditure. Descriptions enhance the audit trail and assist with determining if the expense is classified correctly and with ensuring all payments are legitimate and properly supported by adequate documentation. Lack of descriptions also increases the possibility that a check could be written to an unauthorized payee. This is another material weakness that increases the possibility of a material misstatement or fraud occurring. Schedule I shows copies of the Treasurer's checks and shows no description at the bottom of the checks.

No Legal Authority for the Board to Provide Oversight of the Treasurer

The Franklin County Board Chairman indicated the Board has no legal authority to obtain records and documents from the Treasurer's Office.³ He indicated that he has requested documents and reports numerous times without compliance by the Treasurer. He has also stated that the Treasurer has been consistently uncooperative and non-responsive to requests by the Board.

This lack of legal authority to compel the release of financial information is a serious material weakness in internal controls. There needs to be oversight by someone outside of the Treasurer's office, preferably an independent body like the Franklin County Board. One need not look further than the infamous fraud perpetrated in Dixon, Illinois to see how catastrophic the lack of oversight can be. Rita Crundwell embezzled approximately $54 million while she was the Comptroller and Treasurer of Dixon, Illinois.

The Treasurer Writes and Authorizes the Checks of the County without Oversight or Review

As mentioned earlier, the checks and the signatures of the Treasurer and County Clerk issued by the Franklin County Treasurer's department are generated by computer software. In addition, the Treasurer reconciles the accounts from which the checks are written, which further reduces the possibility of errors or fraud being detected. Strong internal controls require the person issuing the check be separate from the person reviewing and authorizing the payment.

Lack of Delegation and Segregation of Duties

According to information provided to me by a former employee, the Treasurer stopped delegating accounting and financial reporting duties in 2021 and did most of the financial statement reporting on his own. This lack of delegation by the Treasurer was also confirmed by the Chairman of the Board. When one individual controls significant components of the financial reporting process without proper segregation of duties, it represents a major red flag for the possibility of material financial misstatements, whether due to error or fraud. Ideally, there are four duties which should all be performed by separate individuals: authorization, custody, record keeping, and reconciliation. In the case of issuing checks, it would mean one person would have physical custody of the check, another would authorize the check, another would record the check in the financial system, and yet another would reconcile the bank account from which the check was issued. Obviously, in a small office this would have to be accomplished by rotating duties or by utilizing people in other departments.

No Random Audits

Fraud is inversely related to the perception that detection is likely. Previous to this investigation, the Treasurer had no reason to believe that anyone would be reviewing his work. The possibility that random audits will occur is a powerful deterrent to fraud, and also helps to prevent errors in reporting.

Delays, Excuses, and Reticence to Provide Financial Information

Consistently delayed issuance of financials and delayed responses to other information requests is another red flag, along with excuses for the delays. An outright refusal to provide financial data along with a defensive attitude and an inability to answer financial questions during Board meetings is an even bigger red flag. The next section details the specific instances of delays.

Delays in Providing Financial Information by the Treasurer

During the course of my analysis, I found numerous instances where the Treasurer did not provide information on a timely basis when requested. This led to delays in financial reporting and more specifically, delays in the issuance of the annual audit report.

Delays in Providing Information to the External Auditors

As part of my investigation, I interviewed Sarah Kary, an auditor with Rice Sullivan, LLC.⁴ Ms. Kary was the lead external auditor in charge of the audit of the Franklin County financial statements. I asked Ms. Kary if there were any difficulties in working with the Treasurer. She indicated the Treasurer routinely delayed providing information to the audit team that was critical in performing a timely and accurate audit. In several cases, when he did provide financial information, it was not what was requested or was incomplete. The delays and lack of care in providing information to the auditor has the appearance of impropriety.

Delays in the Release of the Audit Report

In 2021, the audit report was released more than a year after the fiscal year-end. The audit report for the fiscal year-end November 20, 2021 was not released until more than a year later on December 2, 2022. According to statements by Ms. Kary, the auditing firm was unable to release its audit opinion on a timely basis due to these frequent delays in receiving the required financial information and as a result, the required audits were filed significantly past their due dates.

The state of Illinois requires that the audit should begin as soon as possible after the close of the fiscal year to which it pertains, and must be completed within 180 days after the close of that fiscal year unless an extension of time is granted by the Comptroller in writing.⁵ Failure to timely file the audit report can subject the County to financial penalties.

When the audit firm was finally able to produce the audit report, it noted several concerns at the end of the report. One of the major concerns was the delays in providing information to the auditor. As mentioned earlier, the late audit reports can cause problems for future bond issues

⁵ 50 ILCS 310 Governmental Account Audit Act and could potentially affect the County's credit rating, and thus increase the interest payments associated with future borrowing. All of which would negatively affect the County's finances.

Delays in Providing Information to the Franklin County Board by the Treasurer

According to the Chairman of the Franklin County Board, the Treasurer would consistently delay providing information requested by the Board. In many cases, he ignored their request and refused to provide the information.⁶

Failure to comply with requests for financial information denies the Board the oversight function necessary for sufficient internal control. This lack of oversight is a material weakness in internal controls that increases the likelihood, to an unacceptable level, that a material misstatement could occur, whether by error or fraud, and not be detected before the financial statements are released by the public. It also greatly increases the possibility of an intentional misstatement because the lack of oversight leads to the perception that the chance of the misstatement being discovered is low.

Delays and Difficulty Providing Information to the Forensic Accountants

My associate and I requested, on several occasions, financial information from the Treasurer. Initially, we tried to access the system directly, only to be repeatedly kicked off the system due to it being in use. Later, we were unable to go beyond the initial log-in before being asked to provide additional passwords we didn't have. It is unclear if this were the result of technical difficulties or deliberate interference.

When we did receive information, in many cases the information was unorganized, not the information we requested, or was information not relevant to the analysis. This resulted in additional time on the engagement causing us to review the information provided and make additional requests.

The information was also not clearly labeled in the electronic folders and it caused me and my associate to incur numerous extra hours to determine the content and relevance because any information sent as part of a forensic investigation must be read and analyzed carefully to determine if it has any effect on the analysis. Reviewing massive amounts of non-relevant information increases the time and cost of a forensic accounting engagement.

My associate sent a request in the form of a table to be filled in so we would be able to better understand the structure and relationships between the different accounts and different funds. The Treasurer did not fill in the table; he instead requested we call him for explanations. The call, unfortunately, did not result in the clarification we were seeking.

⁶ Interview with Mr. Larry Miller, Chairman of the Franklin County Board, January 23, 2023.

Errors, Misstatements and Unusual Transactions by the Treasurer

Errors Made by the Treasurer

There have been consistent errors and misstatements made by the Treasurer since he has been in the position. Ms. Kaye, the former lead auditor, indicated there have been numerous financial recording errors made by Treasurer since she has been the lead auditor. In one instance, funds were deposited in the wrong account. If this error was not detected by the auditor, it could represent a material misstatement in the financial statements.

A former employee also indicated that while she was an employee of the department and during the time she had access to the financial records, she found numerous errors made by the Treasurer. According to her, the Treasurer made incorrect journal entries, made deposits in the wrong accounts, and had significant shortfalls in bank accounts.

Because governmental accounting requires the use of fund accounting where each fund has limitations on how it can be utilized, the errors and incorrectly deposited funds could subject the County to complaints and potential penalties regarding the misuse of funds.

Unusual Transactions Made by the Treasurer at the End of the Period

There were several unusual transactions made by the Treasurer during the period I analyzed. Unusual transactions made at the end of the period are considered a red flag for fraud. Because a significant amount of financial activity occurs at the end of a period, such as numerous adjusting and closing entries, errors or fraud can occur and not be detected. This is due to the fact there is less time to look at the transactions and more of them to examine. Conversely, if errors or fraud occur at the beginning of the period, there is more time to review and catch any errors or identify any suspicious activity. Accordingly, unusual transactions made at the end of the period must be investigated to ensure they are legitimate.

Schedule II is a listing of all of the transactions that the Treasurer wrote out of the General County Highway Fund from December 22, 2021 to November 30, 2022. Schedule II shows numerous errors in the entries, including voided checks, inconsistent use of batch and reference numbers, and transactions that lacked sufficient descriptions to explain their purpose.

Checks Written by the Treasurer Were Not in Sequential Order

During the course of my analysis, I found numerous checks issued out of sequential order. When non-sequential checks are issued (see Schedule III), it makes identification of the outstanding checks much more difficult and increases the time required to reconcile the account. A strong system of internal controls would have software controls built in that would not allow a check to be issued out of sequential order. This represents another material weakness in internal controls and a major red flag for the possibility of fraud because there is seldom a credible reason for issuing checks out of sequence.

Bank Reconciliations that Did Not Agree

There were several instances that were brought to my attention where the bank reconciliations prepared by the Treasurer did not agree to the book and bank totals. In many cases, the differences were material.

The purpose of a bank reconciliation is to determine the actual cash balance. Transactions can take place at the bank that are not known until the bank statements are received and therefore, are not yet been recorded in the financial statements; examples include interest earned, bank charges, and returned checks. Conversely, transactions occur in the financial records that have not yet cleared the bank, such as deposits in transit and outstanding checks. The reconciled cash balance is the true balance of cash and its determination is necessary for planning purposes and to prevent overdrafts.

When the bank reconciliation does not agree, it could be the result of many things, such as not recording all of the outstanding checks, not recording a deposit in transit, book or bank errors, or depositing funds in the wrong account. These differences can be the result of errors or intentional fraud.

When these reconciliations are delayed, the County could lose funds because of the aforementioned time limits in notifying the bank of errors or fraudulent withdrawals. Because scammers are so adept at exploiting weaknesses in controls at both the bank and in organizations, there is a very real possibility that undetected fraudulent withdrawals could wind up depleting an account of its entire balance. That could have catastrophic consequences for the County if one of its multi-million dollar accounts were the target.

Checks Written by the Treasurer's Office Were Written Back to the Treasurer's Office

After analyzing the checks written by the Treasurer, I found numerous checks written by the Treasurer's Office that were written back to the Treasurer's Office. There is no accounting purpose to writing a check back to your own department. This practice makes the tracing of checks and deposits challenging and makes the audit trail difficult to follow. While the checks we traced were simply transfers between funds, the very real possibility exists that the Treasurer could convert these checks for personal use. This represents a major red flag, increasing the possibility of a material misstatement, whether by error or fraud, especially considering many of these checks were also written out of order and had insufficient descriptions of the purpose of the transaction. It would be much cleaner to simply electronically transfer money between accounts or funds, and it would eliminate the possibility of the checks being misused for personal expenditures.

In Schedules III-VII, I have summarized the checks written to the Franklin County Treasurer from the Franklin County common account ending in 0607, with each additional schedule showing a different sort order (by check number, by amount, by date written, and by date cleared). From the period beginning December 31, 2020 to November 15, 2021, the Treasurer wrote 92 checks out of the common account with the payee listed as Franklin County Treasurer. These checks totaled $4,320,585.37.

Several Checks from County Residents Were Not Deposited on a Timely Basis

According to information provided to me by the Chair of the Franklin County Board, Mr. Larry Miller, the county received numerous complaints from county residents that their checks had not cleared the bank on a timely basis. Mr. Miller indicated that numerous undeposited checks were found in the desk drawer of the Treasurer. In fact, a tax check written by Mr. Miller to the Treasurer's Office was outstanding for a long period of time.

When checks are not deposited on a timely basis, it increases the possibility they will be lost or converted for personal use. The longer checks remain undeposited, the more likely they will be lost or stolen. The lack of controls to ensure timely deposits is a major red flag and greatly increases the possibility of fraud to an unacceptable level. There is no reason why this should be occurring. In addition to increasing the chances of the check being lost or misused, this practice is causing the County to lose interest income it would otherwise be earning. It also makes the County look incompetent in its handling of its residents' funds.

The Treasurer Denied a Request to Allow a Former Employee of the Office to Extract Data

As part of my analysis, I am required to obtain objective evidence to form my opinion. Receiving information from an individual who is the subject of an investigation is not considered objective evidence. Therefore, in an interview with the Treasurer,⁷ I requested that he allow a former employee, who is still employed by the County, to access the County's accounting system and provide me with the necessary financial information for my investigation. Having the employee access the data would have saved time and expense in this engagement and would have provided more objective evidence for my investigation. The Treasurer refused to allow the former employee to retrieve the data for me under any circumstances and even suggested that I drive over from St. Louis to physically collect the data.

Since this is not in litigation, I do not have the power to access the data directly without a court-ordered warrant. A warrant would be necessary to ensure clean data because the possibility exists that data provided by the subject of an investigation could be altered before it is provided to me.

Lack of Skills or Abilities by the Treasurer to Perform the Duties of the Office

The primary responsibility of the Treasurer is to ensure the financial statements are prepared in such a way that they fairly and accurately represent the financial condition of Franklin County and are free from material misstatements. If the financial statements are not prepared in accordance with that requirement, the users of the financial statements could lose confidence in the financial statements and that, in turn, could affect future bond issues and the interest costs associated with future borrowing. The County's tax payers would also be unhappy if their taxes were raised to cover these preventable additional costs.

The Treasurer Could Not Answer Basic Questions Asked by the Board

According to interviews with Board members, the Treasurer has not been able to answer basic questions about the County budget and transactions underlying the financial statements. They stated that the Treasurer appeared to lack basic knowledge of the budget process, and he did not give clear answers regarding unusual transactions posted in the financial statements.

The position of County Treasurer requires significant knowledge of governmental accounting. Governmental accounting focuses on accountability and fund balances rather than profit maximization. Governmental accounting is a specialized area of accounting and requires significant training and experience. According to the biography published when the current Treasurer was running for County Treasurer, he earned a bachelor's in accounting in 2012 and a master's in accounting in 2013. He then went to work as a staff accountant at the Jamestown Management Corporation for one year, followed by working as a cost accountant at Aisin Manufacturing in Illinois for four years. He has five years total experience working at for-profit companies and no experience in governmental accounting, which has its own designations and its own standards. He also never previously held a management-level position that was responsible for managing the entire financial accounting process. All these factors contribute to my opinion that the current Treasurer lacks the background and education to perform the duties required in this position.

The Treasurer Lacks the Organizational Skills Necessary in the Position

I requested numerous financial documents from the Treasurer in the course of my analysis. The documents that were provided were not clearly organized in electronic folders. My associate and I had to go back and forth looking for information contained in the folders that were sent to us. We also had to make numerous requests for information necessary to perform my analysis. In Schedule VIII, I summarize a list of documents that were requested and not provided initially by the Treasurer as well as clarifications that were requested. We had to request the documents several times to receive the information we required.

He also provided numerous documents that were not requested. We received more than 10,000 pages of documents for this analysis; one document was over 1,500 pages. This is often called information overload, which makes it more difficult to sort through the information provided and find the relevant data.

When an accountant lacks organizational skills, it can extend the completion of the financial statements by a considerable period. In this case, the audit report on the financial statements was not completed until twelve months after year-end, despite Illinois requiring governmental audits to be completed within six months after the end of the fiscal year. In my opinion, the Treasurer's lack of organization skills was a contributing factor in the delay.

The Former External Auditor Noted Frequent Mistakes in the Financial Statements

As mentioned earlier in this report, I interviewed the former lead external auditor, Sarah Kary, as part of my investigation. Ms. Kaye indicated that she notified the Treasurer on several occasions of errors and misstatements in the financial statements. Ms. Kaye indicated that his lack of providing timely financial data and frequent errors were major reasons the firm resigned as Franklin County's external auditors. I believe the audit firm was also concerned because these errors coupled with the inability of the Board to receive timely financial information triggered my investigation.

The auditing firm identified at least twelve weaknesses in internal controls in its last audit report for the fiscal year ended November 30, 2021. Most of these weaknesses were listed as material weaknesses in internal controls and a few were listed as significant deficiencies. A material weakness is defined in Auditing Standard Number 5 as "a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control over financial reporting, such that there is a reasonable possibility that a material misstatement of the company's annual or interim financial statements will not be prevented or detected on a timely basis."⁸

A significant deficiency is defined as "a deficiency, or a combination of deficiencies, in internal control over financial reporting that is less severe than a material weakness, yet important enough to merit attention by those responsible for oversight of the company's financial reporting."⁹

Although a significant deficiency is less critical than a material weakness in that it is unlikely to have a material impact on the financial statements, it still should be concerning to those responsible for financial reporting and should be investigated. Sometimes investigation of these non-material errors can help uncover fraud, which typically starts with smaller amounts before escalating to material amounts.

The weaknesses and concerns listed in the external auditor's November 2021 audit report were as follows:

Material Weaknesses

- The Treasurer did not prepare bank reconciliation on a timely basis.
- Checks received by the Treasurer's Office were not deposited on a timely basis.

- Limited segregation of duties
- Non-timely reporting of disbursement checks
- Financial records were not timely available to complete the audit by state and federal deadlines.
- Final tax receipts for the calendar tax year 2020 were not distributed to the County's taxing districts until August 2022.
- Vendor checks were backdated from December 2021 to November 2021.
- Carryforward of balancing adjustment on monthly bank reconciliation

Significant Deficiencies

- The Treasurer's Office did not maintain a positive cash balance in several of the governmental funds.
- Inadequate capital asset management of purchases and disposals
- Non-timely IMRF (pension) reimbursement payments between County offices
- Property tax distribution following second installment was not paid within 30 days of installment due date.

In a non-governmental audit, a single material weakness would result in an adverse opinion of the internal control system of the entity. In a governmental audit, the auditing firm is only required to list any significant deficiencies and material weaknesses in internal control uncovered during the audit.

Based on the auditor's list of material weaknesses in internal controls, there is a significant possibility that a material misstatement could occur, whether by error or fraud, in the published financial statements, and not be detected by the system of internal control.

Fraud Profiles

Although I did not have enough information to determine if fraud were present, it is interesting to note the traits of a typical fraudster identified by the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (ACFE) in its 2022 report on fraud:

- 73% of all fraud in the U.S. was committed by males and resulted in a 25% higher median loss. This may be due to a higher percentage of men in management positions.
- 54% of reported frauds involved a perpetrator between the ages of 31 and 45.
- 65% of reported frauds were committed by people who attended or graduated from college. The median loss was more than twice that of perpetrators with no college education.
- Fraud by employees with greater tenure tended to result in larger losses, presumably because they have gained more knowledge of processes and controls, including exploitable weaknesses.

- Most offenders had no prior criminal record.

Summary of Forensic Investigation

Based on my analysis, it is my opinion that the Treasurer does not possess the skills and abilities necessary to perform the job duties required as Treasurer of Franklin County. Continued deficiencies in the County's financial reporting and the inability to submit timely financial information will have a substantially negative affect on the financial operations of the County and impact the Board's ability to plan for future financial needs since the Board is tasked with the following financial duties:

- Adoption of the annual operating budget and tax levy
- Approval of bills from all the County departments
- Awarding of contracts
- Negotiation and approval of labor contracts
- Oversight of special projects¹⁰

Based on a review of the external auditing firm's reports over the past four years, there has been a pattern of lack of compliance and errors in financial reporting. Many of these issues have not been resolved to date and in fact, have become more numerous.

I was unable to make any conclusions on the existence of fraud since the financial information given to me and to my associate was provided by the subject of the investigation and therefore, could have been altered to conceal the presence of fraud. However, I documented the existence of many red flags, which are considered potential fraud indicators, meaning they are typically present when fraud has occurred. I also identified many weaknesses in the internal controls over financial reporting in the Treasurer's Office. Since the Treasurer does not often delegate his duties, the responsibility for these deficiencies rests with him.

Obviously, the existence of fraud would be a serious matter. However, the errors, weaknesses in internal controls, and the inability of County officials to get timely financial data from the Treasurer's Office can result in just as much damage to the finances of Franklin County. At the very least, we know that the vast inefficiencies have resulted in forfeited interest income because deposits were not timely made and reconciliations were not done timely enough to catch any bank errors or unauthorized disbursements of funds. Due to the repeated delays in receiving timely financial data, there were undoubtedly missed opportunities to enhance revenue or cut costs because of the lack of accurate financial information.

I have attached a list of the issues I found and recommendations for correcting these issues (see Schedule IX). The most serious issue, the Board lacking the authority to oversee the Treasurer's office, is an issue that must be addressed by appropriate legal measures granting that authority to the Board. The other recommendations must be addressed within the Treasurer's office, which may be difficult unless the current Treasurer is receptive to acting upon those suggestions.

I reserve the right to amend this report if additional information becomes available. As I was writing this report, I was made aware of the following concerns for recent periods that are outside of the time period I examined:

- The IMRS pension account had a negative balance and had been put in the wrong fund. This account should never have a negative balance.
- The contingency account, which is not a cash account, was shown as drawing interest, even though it is only a ledger account and is not in a bank or other financial institution. There was also an unusual in-and-out journal entry between the master account and a subaccount.
- The State's Attorney Anti-Crime Fund, which usually has a balance of approximately $500,000, is now down around $266,000. In January 2022, the balance was around $470,000.
- The Sheriff's Forfeiture Account has incurred around $1,160 in account fees through the end of 2022, even though the bank has previously reversed these charges when contacted. Because of this, the Sheriff's Office has asked to close the current account and move it to a bank where the Sheriff's Office can monitor it. The Sheriff and the Board Chairman all approved the transfer, but the Treasurer vetoed the move.
- Most recently, the Chairman of the Board advised that the Treasurer has paid off a multimillion-dollar debt without Board approval. The interest rate paid on that debt was substantially below the interest rate the County was earning on the money. As a result of paying off that debt, the County will lose approximately $100,000 per year in additional revenue.

These recent assertions have not been investigated, but they are consistent with what I uncovered in the time period I examined. To the extent that I can obtain the relevant information to further investigate these claims, I will issue a supplement to this report.

Respectfully,

Troy V. Luh, Ph.D., CPA/ABV, CFF, CGMA, MSvs

SCHEDULE IX: INTERNAL CONTROL ISSUES and RECOMMENDATIONS

IMPORTANT CONTROL DEFICIENCIES	RECOMMENDATIONS
No oversight of Treasurer's Office	Initiate legal actions necessary to grant oversight authority to the Board.
No segregation of duties. It is best to separate the functions of authorizing a transaction, recording it, reconciling it, and having physical custody of the asset.	There is limited segregation of duties which can occur in a small office, but rotating duties can accomplish the same thing. Currently, the Treasurer is performing all four functions, which creates the perfect opportunity for fraud to occur. Even someone who is not inclined to commit fraud could be tempted to do so if the opportunity presents itself and he/she believes there is a low probability the theft will be detected.
Use of a computer-generated check signatures.	An important control for larger checks is the requirement for two signatures to be present. This control is circumvented when the signatures are generated by a computer program. There is a possibility that the second signee did not review the expenditure or someone unauthorized person could access the system and issued unauthorized checks.
The Treasurer writes and authorizes checks without oversight or review	The Treasurer handles all four functions covered under the segregation of duties section. He has physical custody of the checks, he authorizes the transaction, he signs the check, he records the transaction, and he reconciles the account. This is an extremely dangerous practice.
No descriptions on checks	While this is a less important issue than the one above, it at least forces a reason to be given for the issuance of the check.
Backdating of vendor checks and checks written out of chronological order	The accounting system should be changed so that checks cannot be backdated or written out of sequence. Backdating a check could make it possible for a check to be recorded back to a period for which financials have already been issued, further decreasing the chances of fraud detection.

IMPORTANT CONTROL DEFICIENCIES	RECOMMENDATIONS
Checks are written by the Treasurer payable to the Treasurer	The checks we traced were for the movement of money from one fund to another, but the better way to accomplish this would be to initiate a bank transfer. The current practice could enable the Treasurer to easily deposit County funds into his personal account.
No approval process to add vendors	Many fraud schemes involve fictitious vendors. Therefore, it is important that there be an independent approval process in order to add a new vendor. Periodically, the vendor file should be compared to the employee file to check for matching bank accounts, addresses, and phone numbers.
Delayed deposit of checks	Checks should be received and listed by one person and then cross-checked against the actual deposit. An entirely separate person should be reconciling the bank account. An alternate strategy is to use a lockbox, whereby the bank handles the deposit and remits the information back to the County.
Bank reconciliations are not timely	Bank reconciliations should be completed no later than 30 days after the end of the period.
Bank reconciliations should not have a carryforward balancing adjustment that does not have an explanation	Any carryforward balancing adjustment without an explanation must be investigated and the cause addressed.
No random audits	Surprise audits should be implemented to increase the perception that there is oversight that could lead to the discovery of theft or other improprieties.
Fund accounts are not properly managed	There needs to be a review process in place to prevent the deposit of funds into the wrong account. There also needs to be a review of any fund balance that becomes negative, especially funds that should never have a negative balance, like pension funds.
Tax receipts were not timely distributed	There needs to be a process in place to facilitate the timely distribution of funds, and to flag any undistributed funds.

IMPORTANT CONTROL DEFICIENCIES	RECOMMENDATIONS
Pension payment reimbursement payments were not timely	Again, there needs to be a process in place to facilitate timely reimbursements, and to flag any delays.
Inadequate controls over capital purchases and disposals	Processes must be put in place so that additional approval is required for both purchases and disposals over a certain dollar amount. This would ensure that only required purchases are made and would limit the opportunity to sell a County asset and pocket the money. Tagging and management of assets is also necessary to ensure County assets remain in the possession of the County.
